“I would propose that whether a person trusts a given leader depends heavily on whether there exist intermediary personal contacts who can, from their own knowledge, assure him that the leader is trustworthy...Trust in leaders is integrally related to the capacity to predict and affect their behavior.”

Mark S. Granovetter. “The Strength of Weak Ties.” American Journal of Sociology 1973; 78 (6):1360-1380.

“....the same leadership approach that makes people safe, makes an organization productive, and gives a community a sense of well being, is based on nurturing a culture of responsibility and trust.”

David R. Franz. "The Dual Use Dilemma: Crying Out for Leadership,"
Saint Louis University Journal of Health Law & Policy 2013;7(1): Art 4.
